PANIC IS PAST

Market, While Feverish, Rebounded and All Prices Were Higher.

BARGAIN-HUNTERS ON HAND
Money Ruled Easier and the Whole Situation Has a Much Healthier Tone.

NEW YORK, March 15.—Yesterday's passages of further disaster in the stock market were not fulfilled to-day. A violent rebound in prices occurred instead.

The market remained very feverish, but the violence of the fluctuations was in diminishing degree. The appearance of brokers' offices this morning indicated the arrival in the field in force of the class of buyers known in Wall Street as "bargain hunters."

The market showed growing effect of the restoration of confidence, and closed under the advance, while of sensational proportion, did not restore the losses of a single day's selling of yesterday.
